Artifact 2: Infographic Design (Project 3, Genre 3)

WHEN A YOUNG ADULT (AGES 18-29) OVERSPENDS ON SOCIAL MEDIA

TALK TRIGGERS, NOT WILLPOWER

Understand the Trigger 1

The purchase happens because the post came from a creator or club they feel personally connected to, not because they lack awareness that a countdown timer is a sales tactic.

Skip the Lecture 2

Blaming willpower does not address what actually happened. Ask which account the purchase came from and why it mattered to them.

It Is Not About Discipline 3

Financial literacy gaps trace back to family background, not character. Two young adults ages 18 to 29 can see the same post and respond very differently.

Practice Pausing Together 4

Financial lessons work best in the moment of an actual purchase, not in a one-time class disconnected from real spending.

Talk, Do Not Warn 5

Open a conversation about identity and belonging. A conversation changes behavior more reliably than a warning about marketing tactics.

Source: Croes & Bartels, 2021; Lusardi et al., 2010; Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, 2016